Admits Slaying Of Prominent Struthers Man

YOUTH TELLS OF CRIME AND VISIT TO SALEM

Chauncey Miller, 22, Is Held For Murder of Henry Fitch

NEW TESTAMENT PRINCIPAL CLUE

Miller Slaying With Suspect, Arrested In Uniontown, Pa.

(By Associated Press)
YOUNGSTOWN, Dec. 21.—Chauncey Miller, 22, of Struthers, confessed early today that he had slain Henry Fitch, prominent Struthers man, as Fitch's car approached the Struthers police station Oct. 18, Sheriff Ralph Elser announced.

Miller was returned here last night from Uniontown, Pa., where he had been arrested for breaking seals on a freight car. A New Testament, bearing Miller's name, which he had left in a cave where he hid a few hours after the slaying, helped connect him with the slaying.

Admits Shooting
Elser said Miller admitted freely last night that he was in the car, and first insisted that Fitch shot himself. Only after further questioning, when confronted with the statements of witnesses which conflicted with his story, did Miller admit shooting Fitch, Elser declared.

Elser picked Miller up on the way to Struthers, and that he shot Fitch while they were crossing a bridge, 150 feet from the Struthers station.

Elser said Miller gave no motive for the shooting.

Elser said, Miller is said to have hidden, he hid in a cave in the New creek valley, and burned his clothes. Later he went to Salem to Fitch's grave; then started for Uniontown, Md. On the way there he was arrested for stealing railroads' lunches and spent 40 days in jail at Grafton, Pa.

Recalls Testament
Police Chief Harry Davis of Struthers had been given a New Testament left behind by Miller in the cave. When Baltimore and Annapolis police at Uniontown, Pa., called Miller again last week, he went to Davis for his record, revealing the testament, Davis said for a description of Miller. Then the description fit that of the man seen fleeing from Fitch's slaying. Davis and Elser went to Uniontown. He returned here without protest, Elser said.

Awaits Parole
Leo Davidson, sentenced from Columbiana county following his conviction on charge of burglary and larceny, will be paroled from the Ohio penitentiary Feb. 1, the parole board announced today. He is one of 66 prisoners being released.

SALE OF YULE SEALS BOOSTED

1938 Figures Show 10 Per Cent Increase Over Last Year's

LISBON, Dec. 21.—Christmas seal sales in Columbiana county show a ten per cent increase over last year's figures, Delmer Serafy, executive secretary of the Columbiana County Health league, stated Tuesday.

Exclusive of East Liverpool, sales to date total approximately $2,500, according to Serafy. East Liverpool is conducting a drive independent of other sections of the county, he added.

Six doctors recommended by the National Tuberculosis association and three recommended by the state are objects of an investigation, conducted to select a tuberculosis director for the county. Commissioners recently authorized the employment of a full time man for this work.

According to Serafy the appointee will be a man thoroughly familiar with X-Ray and fluoroscope work. In addition he must be a graduate of a recognized medical school and have the ability to speak in public.

Friendly Council Members, Mothers Are Party Guests

The Friendly council, headed by Mrs. J. A. Fehr, entertained members of the Salem Girls Recreation club and their mothers at a Christmas party Tuesday evening in the Memorial building.

Guests at the affair included several former leaders of the club. Mrs. Fehr introduced the club officers and adult leaders and presented a short resume of the purpose of the club and its activities.

Sixty-five girls, mothers and leaders sang Christmas carols and a Santa Claus distributed gifts to the girls, given by Salem Book club members.

Refreshments were served at an attractive table decorated with pine, holly, a Christmas tree and candles.

An interesting feature of the event was an extensive and unique display of the handcraft work of members for this fall.

St. Paul's Pupils Will Greet Santa

The Knights of Columbus will be in charge of a Christmas entertainment for youngsters at St. Paul's school Thursday morning. Gifts will be distributed by Santa Claus. Lunch, provided by the council members, will be served and a special program will be presented by the students.

PAN AMERICAN DEFENSE PACT WINS APPROVAL

Principal Delegations In Agreement Against Aggression

PROVIDES FOR CONSULTATION

Secretary Hull Insists On Unanimity In Declaration

(By Associated Press)
LIMA, Peru, Dec. 21.—The principal delegations to the Pan-American conference agreed today on a declaration of cooperative action against aggression, ending a ten-day dispute on wording between the United States and Argentina.

The declaration, highly reliable conference informants said, provides for consultation against aggression, the menace of force, and subversive political propaganda.

Both Win Points
Argentina won her point in that European or other non-American nations were not named specifically. The United States attained its purpose, however, delegates said, in obtaining a declaration to which all the 21 American republics could subscribe.

Many of the delegates held that it was fear of propagandist incursion by European totalitarian, dictator states which inspired the resolution in the first place; that even if it did not specifically contain the phrase "aggression from without" its warning was evident.

A most reliable source said the United States, Argentine, Brazilian and Peruvian delegation chiefs agreed to a final draft at conferences lasting until early morning. The Argentine insistence that the declaration be against all aggressors was based on the contention that the United States might one day alter the good neighbor policy and herself be a potential aggressor.

Awaits Home Approval
The resolution now awaits the approval of home governments and, with the principal dispute settled, likely will be adopted unanimously within a few days, delegation spokesmen said.

It provides for resistance against any aggression or menace of aggression by force against an American republic. Any of the nations may start the procedure of consultation.

Secretary Hull of the United States, having abandoned his own wish for a formal mutual defense pact, insisted upon a declaration that could be made unanimous. He said last night that he could go no further in making concessions but presumably decided later that the general wording would be acceptable.

Motorists Report Three Accidents

Three traffic accidents were reported in the city Tuesday, while icy pavements today caused motorists to drive with caution.

A machine driven by Charles B. Riley of R. D. 4, Salem, overturned at the intersection of S. Ellsworth and Wilson st. at 12:50 p. m., after being struck by another car operated by Joseph Hamilton of R. D. 1, Leetonia, police said. No one was injured.

The slippery intersection of E. State st. and Lincoln ave. was the scene of another accident at 8 p. m. when an automobile driven by James Regan of R. D. 5, Salem, crashed into two parked cars, one of which was owned by George Trisler of 1121 Franklin st. The other was licensed F-24-E, according to reports.

Clarence J. Townsend of Beloit told police his car struck and damaged a light pole at 350 S. Union ave. at 12:30 a. m. today when he attempted to reach back and close a rear door of his machine which flew open.

DAVEY DEMANDS PENSION MONEY

Blisters Security Board; Repeats "Dirty Politics Charge"

COLUMBUS, Dec. 21.—In a blistering letter that referred repeatedly to his charges of "dirty politics," Gov. Martin L. Davey demanded today that the federal security board pay its share of October old age pensions.

The board withheld its 50 per cent share of Ohio grants for that month following a quarrel with Davey over the state's pension administration. November and December allotments were made recently after being held up temporarily.

"If you don't send this money for October, I charge you with robbing the State of Ohio of this $1,356,756.38—and I mean rob," the governor wrote Board Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer.

"That money belongs to the taxpayers of Ohio, and belongs in their treasury. It is not even federal money, except in the sense that you collect it from the taxpayers of Ohio."

Crippled Tots are Thrilled As Santa Claus Pays Visit

Twenty-Seven Youngsters Entertained by Rotary Club at Annual Christmas Party

Twenty-seven crippled children enjoyed a sumptuous turkey dinner, a program of entertainment and a visit from Santa Claus himself at the Rotary club's annual Christmas party at noon Tuesday in the Memorial building.

The youngsters occupied places of honor at the "head table" while club officials, members and guests took "back seats" on this special occasion.

Music by a group of High school students directed by Mrs. Ellis Satterthwaite, director of school music, preceded the dinner. Assembly singing was led by George W. Bunn, with music appropriate to the Yule season.

William L. Hart, Rotary president, presented Atty Joel Sharp who was in charge of the program. Sharp paid special tribute to Atty L. P. Metzger, who has taken a leading part in crippled children's work since the movement was started by Rotary Atty Metzger, III, was unable to attend yesterday's party.

Sharp presented a number of nurses and others who have assisted the organization in this program, including Miss Lillian Schroeder, school nurse; Mrs. Roy Harris, instructor for the schools; Miss Nell Lewis, nurse, who has spent

RAIL CROSSING DRIVE RENEWED

Last Letter to Pennsylvania Unanswered, Solons Are Told

The time-worn question of adequate grade crossing protection in Salem was brought to the floor again at city council's meeting Tuesday night.

Claiming that council's last letter to the Pennsylvania railroad had been unanswered, Councilman Charles Rheutan, chairman of the safety committee, suggested that council draft a new plea to W. E. Harrington, inspector for the public utilities commission of Ohio.

Gates, operated by tower watchmen, protect all principal crossings in the city except Wilson and W. Pershing streets. These crossings are guarded only part time.

Council has been seeking 24-hour protection at these two crossings since four persons were killed in a train-auto accident on Wilson street more than a year ago.

An unidentified motorist reported to several of the councilmen that he barely escaped being hit by a train at the Pershing st. crossing several days ago.

The man told Charles Cornwall, council president, he was still on the crossing when a train roared past him on the track behind him.

Council last night discussed possible abandonment of the Euclid st. extension grade crossing, which cuts across the Pennsylvania railroad from lower S. Broadway to the Ohio Edison Co. sub-station.

City Engineer F. S. Barckhoff cautioned council to secure a right of way from the railroad company for possible sewer lines before closing the crossing. The Euclid st. extension never was accepted as a street by the city.

Councilman C. F. Zimmerman reported that the Stark Electric Railway Co. had promised to repair its street crossings as soon as possible.

PLAN CHANGED AND $10,000 IS NEW ESTIMATE

Original $62,944 Figure Radically Revised As PWA Orders City To Have Entire Sponsor's Share In Fund

SET ASIDE FUND UNDER NEW PLAN

New Scales, Scale House, Water Line Extensions, Incidentals Are Provided For Under Latest Arrangements

City council last night revised its improvement program for the pumping station and approved a $10,000 project, rather than a $62,944 undertaking as previously outlined.

Councilmen based their action upon the fact that the Public Works Administration had forwarded an order which required that the city have in fund, or have in the process of being collected, the entire amount of the sponsor's share. A deadline was fixed for last night.

Councilman A. P. Morris explained further that the revision was made because council never had decided fully upon the expenditure of the $34,620—the city's cost in the entire $62,944 project. The entire program was set up in order that the city might get the PWA's 45 per cent grant, which amounted to $28,324.

Therefore, because council frowned upon appropriation of the sponsor's share in one lump sum, the program was revised and the total cost lowered considerably.

The New Project
Under the new project, the improvements at the pumping station will include: new scales, scale house, water line extensions in at least three sections of the city, inspections and incidentals.

The resolution providing for the project's revision was passed by city council last night as an emergency measure due to the deadline fixed by PWA authorities. The suspension of PWA's action was asked by Councilman Emmor H. Taylor and Charles Rheutan. Final passage was moved by Councilmen Morris and Fred Koenreich.

Because council already had approved an $1,800 expenditure as its share of expense in contract No. 1 of the original project, the solons approved an ordinance appropriating $3,700 from the water works fund to the construction fund, under water works, to provide a total of $5,500 as the city's share in the new project.

A federal grant of $4,500 will go to make up the remainder of the $10,000. Council explained that the PWA already had given its approval to the revised plan.

Construction Costs $9,000
Construction costs under the new program will be $9,000, according to the resolution passed, compared with the previous estimate of $61,144. A preliminary expense of $50 is listed under the revised estimate, plus a miscellaneous cost item of $950.

An $1,800 item originally listed for engineering has been eliminated. Council also discussed legislative steps necessary in connection with the city's blanket street project which PWA officials have indicated may be realized within a short while. A detailed report is expected at the next meeting.

Council indicated long ago that streets will be paved where petitioners have paid assessment costs in advance. W. Fifth st., Prospect and Depot road probably will be given first consideration for these petitions have been in the hands of council for months.

Snyder Making Survey
Councilman Morris informed other members of council that County Engineer Charles O. Snyder is now making a complete survey of the county ditch, upon the recommendation of the county commissioners, with a view to improving the channel.

Morris, who is chairman of council's sewers committee, said Engineer Barckhoff, Service Director Frank Wilson and himself had conferred with county authorities regarding the ditch.

The service director's report of drainage trouble near the Mullins plant was referred to the sewers committee by Council President Charles Cornwall.

An additional ordinance was passed by council, the measure transferring $50 from the medical fund to the incidentals fund of the city as requested by the board of health.

WAR RISK INSURANCE

During the height of the war scare last September, Lloyds of London did a landoffice business in insurance against an outbreak of hostilities within a certain number of weeks. The firm cleaned up handsomely.

In the United States there's an unofficial form of anti-war insurance in effect for an unlimited period. It's the war debts owed by European governments. The semi-annual deadline for payment passed Dec. 15. Finland was the only debtor to honor its obligation.

As usual the event was marked by rumors abroad that negotiations for a settlement would be undertaken. In London and in Paris, the subject has been mentioned. There seems no likelihood of any action, however.

There's a silver lining in the cloud—the fact further loans cannot be made to governments whose debts are in default. The Johnson act expressly forbids it. While that act remains in force, Americans have one of the best war risk policies ever written. The premium's high, but the coverage is complete.

AWKWARD'S THE WORD FOR IT

Hubbub over the threat of senators being made to vote on a resolution condemning a third presidential term is easy to fathom.

The last time such a resolution was adopted, in 1923, Calvin Coolidge was the target. Sixty-one senators went on record against a third term. Twenty-six still are on the job.

Among the 26 are such names as Ashurst, Barkley, LaFollette, McCellar, Neely, Norris, Pittman, and Wagner—all faithful men who sat when the Big Boss says "Scat!"

No devilry the opposition could think up would put such men in a more awkward position than an anti-third term resolution. Either they would have to learn for certain in advance that it wouldn't matter to Franklin D. Roosevelt if they voted against a third term, or they'd have to save their faces by voting No, as they did when they were afraid the Republicans might try to run Cal Coolidge. No wonder the Republicans are grinning—all except Sen. McNary, who got caught the other way by refusing to condemn a third term in 1928.

Awkward's the word for it, all right. How was a Democrat, a Republican or anyone else to know 10 years ago that two presidents would need to be reminded of the two term tradition in one man's lifetime?

SUZ AND PANAMA

The geographic accident which caused the two largest continents in the southern hemisphere to be connected with the northern hemisphere by land bridges has given new significance to a political fact.

The Suez canal, cut through the land bridge between Africa and Arabia, is controlled by French and British capital. The Panama canal is controlled by the United States government.

Suez, always important to Great Britain, lately has become equally important to Italy. The German press now is saying the canal should be internationalized, meaning it should be removed from the control of French and British capital.

This demand, long anticipated, may be in turn the forerunner of a similar demand that the Panama canal cease to be a prime factor in the military strategy of the United States. Though Panama is controlled directly by this government, whereas Suez is controlled only inferentially by the governments of France and Great Britain, the situations are similar.

If the fascist front continues to grow bolder in the next few years at the rate it has maintained since 1935, it may become painfully evident that even the United States can be designated as one of its victims.

STRENGTHENED OR STRETCHED?

Social security experts are like money experts. There are about a dozen in the whole world, and they don't agree.

Consequently, no one knows anything for certain about social security, including those who are administering it. What they think they know is debatable.

This is background for a burgeoning proposal to extend, amplify, and revise old age pensions. The White House is reported to be in favor of it. The social security advisory council has recommended it. Sen. Vandenberg, presumably speaking for Republicans in congress, has endorsed it. Evidently, it's in the books for the new congress to deal with social security.

It is difficult to know what to make of the prospect. One is entitled to wonder, though, whether the United States should be contemplating a bigger bite of social security before it has chewed the one in its mouth. Should an attempt be made to cover more citizens before those already covered have had the proof of the pudding?

Abraham Epstein is executive secretary of the American Association for Social Security. He is one of the world's experts; before most of the men now pondering the subject had begun their careers he was writing books about it. This is by way of introduction.

What Mr. Epstein, who thinks the social security so far has been a failure as far as security's concerned and a borderline fraud so far as taxation is concerned, has to say about the subject in the December issue of Nation's Business seems worth quoting:

"The repeated glib assurances of the administration have fooled no one, least of all the aged and the unemployed. The pity is that the disillusionment which has set in is bringing forth a most fantastic wave of pension lunacies (Editor's Note: As illustrated last November by the attention given Townsend plan, $30 every Thursday etc.) There is the greatest danger that congress, in trying to appease the promoters of pension Utopias, may merely attempt to compete with them, thereby plunging the country into financial chaos.

"Only a national demand for constructive revision of the present act may alleviate the dangers. The social security act can and must be so amended as to convert it into a measure which will not only adequately meet the pressing needs of those for whom it was devised, but also promote the welfare of the nation as a whole."

Perhaps the motive behind the current proposal to cover more Americans into old age pensions is constructive. Perhaps the act will be improved, not merely stretched. We'll have to wait till another expert comes along to explain it in that light.

THE STARS SAY:

For Thursday, December 22

THIS day's astrological auguries are conflicting, judging by the lunar transits. While things may be particularly lively and full of excitement, with a very sudden benefit seeming to "drop from the sky", there also may be just as definite a setback or obstacle to reaping such heralded advantage. It might be a grave danger to an elder, illness or bereavement. A financial loss also is indicated. Nevertheless, new projects are greatly accelerated with support from influential sources. Deal with the young rather than elders.

Those whose birthday it is may experience a year of conflict and contradictions. Important benefits accrue from initiative, determined effort and the aggressive attempt to launch new and important projects. At the same time, there may be a definite setback, due to illness, bereavement, grief or some other frustration. Sateguard funds against loss.

A child born on this day may be energetic and aggressive, and may attract the attention of important persons. Yet, it may suffer from an impetuous and overzealous nature.

OUR OWN MONOPOLY INVESTIGATION

Winter's Foot Troubles
Discussed by Clendening

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE THINK of foot troubles as being mostly due to weight-bearing. Flatfoot is the comprehensive term for them. There are minor varieties of flatfoot. "March foot" is caused by over-fatigue of a weak foot and affects the base of the second, sometimes the third and fourth toes. Treatment includes proper shoes, support of weakened arches, and graduated exercise. "Policeman's heel" may be due to pressure, arthritis or injury.

These troubles occur mostly in the mild weather, which makes up ten months of our American year. They come on when we can get out and walk around freely and comfortably, and use and abuse our feet. There are other troubles of the feet, however, peculiar to the winter season. Certain people are particularly sensitive to them, people who have rather rigid or unstable arteries. You know there are those so sensitive in this way that a plunge into cold water will contract the arteries of the extremities until they become quite white and lifeless, and fainting spells may come on. They have learned that they cannot go in swimming where the water is under 70 degrees.

Elderly Suffer Much
Elderly people, because their arteries are no longer elastic, suffer much from the effects of cold and wet on winter streets. Heavy woolen socks and no constricting garters are worn by them.

Especially should diabetics avoid exposure of this kind. The diabetic's feet are a vulnerable point with him. He should always sit with the feet elevated at least on a footstool and avoid pressure on the backs of the legs on the edge of the chair. He should certainly avoid snowy streets.

The typical example of the effects of cold on the feet is chilblains. It results from a previous mild frostbite and involves usually the heel or the toes. When again exposed to cold, the part becomes congested, and on being warmed there is itching, tingling and stinging, with swelling and redness. Sometimes it becomes covered with blisters; even ulceration may occur.

The best treatment of chilblains is prevention. When they once have occurred, they are certain to come on again with exposure. Warm stockings, loose shoes, no constricting garters will help protect. Mitchell, an Australian surgeon, treats chilblains on the principle of direct elastic pressure. Thin pieces of rubber, the weight of medium rubber gloves, are used in strips to cover the foot. The stocking is put on over them. He claims that the condition is relieved instantly.

If the chilblain has occurred, mild rubbing, bathing in cool water and alcohol are tried at first. Glycerine, either alone or in combination with boric acid, or tincture of iodine painted on the sore place, is of great value.

"Often a Bridesmaid"

BY HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER XXVIII

Clicky, young, bubbled in a very new and sporty topcoat and looking nervous, and self-conscious, waited in the hall. He wouldn't come in. It was plain that he hadn't expected to see Mr. Wickham and Mrs. Werfel abroad at this hour.

Babs' three suitcases and hatbag were already in the car. He stood, first on one foot, then on the other. From time to time he looked at his watch. The bride was late.

She came downstairs, wearing the suit she'd gotten in the early fall and a new, rakish beret, and something old and something new, something borrowed—and her petticoat is blue—she said laughing.

But her eyes showed traces of tears. Now that the moment had come, goodbyes were hard.

Alex Wickham, usually emotional in a crisis, was taking it all very calmly. He was explaining to Clicky about speed regulations and traffic laws and the necessity of safety. He didn't seem to realize that Babs, the baby, was marrying, perhaps never to return.

"Ah, here she is," he said, as the three women came into the hall together.

Babs had an arm around her sister and Aunt Bet. Aunt Bet carried her bag and gloves, and Margaret had her dressing case.

Clicky took the case. Babs took the purse and gloves. She kissed her father and Aunt Bet and Babs. Clicky took her arm, and they moved toward the door.

"Now remember what I said about the speed laws," her father repeated. "And look out for those mountain roads."

"Yes, sir," Clicky said. He'd driven to Reno half a dozen times in the last two years, and Mr. Wickham had never been to Reno, and had never learned to drive a car. But Clicky believed in agreeing with his elders, and then doing as he pleased later.

"Oh, Daddy—" Babs laughed, and the laugh turned into a sob. She clung to his coat. "Oh, Daddy—" She had to kiss them all over again. And then, looking very young, and very small, she went down the stairs with Clicky, and got into his green coupe, and Clicky started the motor, and while the three on the steps watched, the car gave a last parting "toot" and disappeared around the corner.

Aunt Bet shook her shawl tighter around her shoulders. "It's cold," she said, complainingly.

"Natalie didn't say whether it would be cold in Taos or not," her brother said, "but I'm going to take all my heavy things. I'll need them in Montreal later and again when I get home."

Home, Margaret knew he meant. Home. After all these years, she was talking about his trip when she was on her way to be married. Oh, he was selfish, he was, he was.

It was nearly 5 o'clock now. Too dark and cold to stay up, and too late to go to bed. They went into the denuded library and sat by the fire that Margaret had lit earlier in the morning. Even the room seemed strange and unfriendly now that the books were packed and the old familiar ornaments put away.

"I believe I could drink another cup of coffee," Aunt Bet said. She smiled across at her brother. "I shall have to get used to morning tea all over again."

"Nonsense," he said. "I shall be glad to get back to it. A far more suitable morning beverage."

Margaret paused on her way to the kitchen. "Shall I bring you tea instead of coffee, Daddy?"

He looked at her quickly, searching for a sign of amusement in her face. But she was serious, and he assumed, guileless. "No, thank you, coffee will do very well."

She brought it, with another plate of toast.

"I can't believe it's a wedding," Aunt Bet sighed. "When I think of how nice we had everything for Natalie—"

"I offered to do the same for Babs," Mr. Wickham said defensively, and again he looked at Margaret, but she didn't answer.

"If she'd only had a new suit," Aunt Bet wailed. "I really wanted her to have a new one. Though that green does suit her very well. And your coat was perfect with it, Margaret."

Margaret sighed. She, too, had wanted Babs to have a real trousseau. It hurt a little that Babs wouldn't take anything from her, except at the last minute, the coat.

"I want to be independent," Babs had said.

It hurt, because if she couldn't feel that she'd been necessary to the family—if she couldn't feel that her sacrifices had been necessary, what was there left for her to be proud of?

Nothing—nothing at all!

And no one knew how she felt—no one at all.

Toward evening she drove her father and Aunt Bet across the bridge to San Francisco and to the station where he was to get his train, start the first lap of his journey on the train to Taos.

None of his friends came to see him off and he seemed not to miss them. He didn't even look back at the house as they drove away. All his talk was of Taos and Natalie and Montreal and crossing the Atlantic, and how things would be in Surrey with Jed.

"Au revoir, my dear," Aunt Bet said, and shook hands with her brother.

"Au revoir, Bet," he said. They were two tall, well dressed strangers, parting for a fortnight. They were people Margaret didn't know—this elderly handsome man, with the thin shoulders, the hawk nose, the ruddy skin. The slight, arrogant woman, with her dowdy hat, her complete self-assurance, her air of worldliness.

Were these two daddy and Aunt Bet, whom she'd felt needed her all these years?

Her father kissed her cheek. He said, "Take care of yourself, my dear, and write often!"

He stepped up on the platform of the rain, the porter picked up the portable step, the train began to move, very, very slowly, then faster.

Margaret still stood watching it—watching the empty track after it had gone.

"We may as well go," Aunt Bet said.

"Yes," Margaret answered. But she didn't move. She didn't want to turn and face Aunt Bet with the tears in her eyes. She was ashamed of them. Her father hadn't cried. Aunt Bet hadn't cried. They were so casual and cold about it. She wouldn't let anyone know that she cared, either.

Aunt Bet plucked at her sleeve. "Come, Margaret."

Margaret reached for her handkerchief and mopped her eyes. Then she turned, with false brightness. "All right. Shall we go somewhere nice, and have tea?"

And Aunt Bet said, "Oh, if you like. But wouldn't it be more interesting to go somewhere where we could have a cocktail? It isn't every day that I get to San Francisco to enjoy myself."

Aunt Bet's black hat was a little awry, her pale eyes were bright.

"This is on me," she said, ordering planked steak, broccolini with Hollandaise sauce, and a green salad with Roquefort dressing.

She was having such a good time Margaret didn't know whether to laugh or cry. She never knew that Aunt Bet cared about dining out. She never had.

"This is the sort of thing your Uncle John and I used to do often," she said, afterwards, as they dawdled over the crepes Suzettes. "Oh, yes, John and I were great restaurant goers. We moved into the Fairmont hotel the year it was built and we were out, somewhere or other, every night. I'm afraid I wasn't a very good housekeeper for you all, but I did my best, Margaret. I really did."

Margaret tried to think of Aunt Bet, who hadn't gone anywhere but church and the Altar Guild and concert now and then, as long as she could remember, dashing gayly around San Francisco, and shook her head. It was such a new idea.

"Do you mean you never liked living in our house?" she asked, curiously.

Shocked, Aunt Bet cried, "Why, certainly I did! It was very good of Alex to give me a home, after John died, and I was very glad that I was able to repay him, in some measure, by doing my best to take your mother's place."

"You mean you did your duty," Margaret persisted.

Aunt Bet drained her coffee cup, and lit her cigarette. "If you put it that way," she said.

"And did Daddy like it?"

"Like what, dear?"

"Like the sort of life we led—garden, and house, and we kids, with our friends all over the place?"

"But what else could he do?"

"I know—but did he LIKE it?"

"Really, my dear," Aunt Bet said. Margaret persisted. "Did he LIKE it?"

"Goodness! Of course, it wasn't the life he'd have chosen. I dare say he'd have found it much harder to bear had he thought it would have lasted so long. He expected Ned to take care of him, you know. And he should have. It was his duty. Well, I shouldn't say anything now, but he's doing the right thing. But if it had come earlier it would have made everything much simpler for you girls too. I've felt so badly, all these last years, knowing that you weren't having the advantages you should have had—the travel, the culture, the—"

"You mean that you and he just stayed there for OUR sake?"

"It's no sacrifice when it's for those you love," Aunt Bet reproved her gently.

Margaret put her hand on her aunt's small, veined one. "You're a revelation to me. Honestly, Aunt Bet! I never guessed—"

"Never knew?"

"Knew what?" Aunt Bet asked briskly, taking offense as usual at any show of emotion.

Margaret hesitated, fumbling for words. "I don't know how to put it. What I mean, I suppose, is that I never realized that you and Daddy wanted any other life. I did—and in a way I knew that Babs and Ned did—but I supposed I thought—"

"That we were too old to want anything?" Aunt Bet smiled good humoredly.

"Well—something like that."

"And quite natural. I'm sure I felt just the same, when I was a girl. All children do. I'm certain. But you're growing up Margaret, my dear. Your eyes are opening. I see it very markedly. Hm... was that your waiter? I want another coffee."

It was the following Sunday that Sue dropped in for supper. She'd just got back from Reno and she was so MAD that she'd missed Babs and that sweet Clicky, because if she had known they were there NOTHING would have kept her from the wedding.

"Why didn't you TELL ME?" she wailed.

"It was all so sudden, we hardly knew ourselves. And I knew you'd be busy with your own romance—or is it romances?"

Sue dimpled. Babs and her wedding were forgotten. "My dear, there was the most fascinating man there. A Frenchman—a baron. The most MARVELOUS dancer. Really, I've NEVER in all my life—"

"Are you going to marry him?"

"Of COURSE not! I'm not going to marry anyone. Not me. I had enough marriage to last me the rest of my life. And now let me ask you one. Are you going to marry Kenneth?"

"KENNETH!" Margaret could really laugh at the idea now, and she was so surprised and pleased at her new freedom that she forgot to go on.

"There's nothing so ludicrous about it that I can see," Sue said, with a touch of anger. "After all, he may not be the prize of the world but he's still the best looking thing I ever set eyes on and the most exciting, in his own nasty way. Of course, I don't want him. I wouldn't marry him again if you paid me."

"I should hope not! After going to all the trouble of getting a divorce!"

"Oh I didn't mind that part. It was fun. But what I meant was you always liked Ken and he always liked you—"

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gardner Observe 50th Anniversary

Christmas day will be the occasion of the 50th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Gardner of 243 West Second st.

Mr. Gardner, 72, and Mrs. Gardner, 71, will have their children, grandchildren and a great grandson with them for the event.

A family dinner will be held at noon at the home, and although no formal observance is planned, the couple will welcome friends and neighbors who call during the afternoon.

Miss Rosa Clark and Frank Gardner were married Dec. 25, 1888, and have lived in Salem since their marriage. Mr. Gardner was formerly employed by the Silver Manufacturing Co.

They have one son, Harry, and one daughter, Mrs. Frank Coulson, both of Salem; six grandchildren and one great grandson.

Miss Carmen McNicol Bridge Hostess

Three tables of bridge were in play at a bridge shower given last evening by Miss Carmen McNicol at her home on Woodland ave., honoring Miss Barbara Benzinger, bride-elect of Herbert P. Lindsay of Wichita, Kan.

Mrs. Henry Reese and Miss Jean Harwood won the prizes.

A shower of gifts was presented Miss Benzinger.

The hostess served a buffet lunch after the cards. The charming table appointments were appropriate for the holiday season with mirrored centerpiece of holly and pine, and red and white candles in crystal holders. A Christmas candle lighted each card table where guests were seated.

Social events for Miss Benzinger will continue after Christmas with a party Tuesday evening, Dec. 27, at the home of Miss Margaret McCulloch, Highland ave.

Girl Scout Carolers Enjoy Party

Girls Scouts Troop No. 1 of the Methodist church enjoyed a Christmas party Monday at the church after singing carols earlier in the evening. Members rode in wagons and sang Christmas music at the two hospitals, the Home for Aged Women, and other points throughout the city.

Accompanying the group were Mrs. C. J. Lehwald, Miss Helen Berg, Mrs. Homer S. Taylor and Mrs. William Merry.

Gifts were exchanged at the church and lunch was served.

Members are contributing fruit, food stuffs, clothing and other supplies to be packed in a Christmas box for a needy family.

The meetings for the next two weeks have been cancelled due to holiday activities. The next meeting of the troop will be held Jan. 9.

Auxiliary Of Elks Has Yule Fete

A delightful Christmas party in charge of Mrs. L. O. Gibbons, Mrs. William Pfaff, Mrs. Charles Frey, Mrs. Arthur Stark, Mrs. Clarence Taylor and Mrs. Clarence Dickey, was enjoyed by the Elks auxiliary in the lodge home last night.

The dining hall, where lunch was served, was beautifully decorated with wreaths and other holiday features. The table, lighted by tall white tapers, had as centerpiece an electrically lighted white Christmas tree on a mirror, surrounded by white reindeer. The table cover was sprinkled with stars. Red and green favors were presented members.

A gift exchange was held following bingo games. About 40 members were present.

The auxiliary will meet Jan. 3 at the home.

During a business meeting initiation for three new members was held.

Complete Plans For Party

Plans for a party Christmas night were completed at a meeting of the V-E's club at the home of Miss Jane Woods, Franklin st., Monday night.

The group will meet Sunday evening at the home of Miss Louise Theiss on Homewood ave., and then go to Nu-Elms ballroom in Youngstown.

Games and dancing provided entertainment during the evening and lunch was served by the hostess.

The club will meet Jan. 5 at the home of Miss Jeanette Layden, North Lundy ave.

CHICAGO GRAIN
CHICAGO, Dec. 21. — Wheat prices in Chicago averaged about steady in early dealings today.
Most traders were apparently being guided by predictions current that United States government crop estimates due after the close would show wheat acreage and condition figures materially reduced.
Opening unchanged to 1/4 cent off, May 66 1/4-1/2, July 66-66 1/2.
Chicago wheat futures afterward scored slight gains. Corn started

Peoples Drug Pays Employees Dividends

The directors of Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., have authorized the payment of a salary dividend to approximately 2,000 of its employees
as follows:

Employees who entered the service of the company after Nov. 30, 1937, and prior to June 1, 1938, will receive 15 per cent of their monthly basic salary. Employees who entered the service of the company after Nov. 30, 1936, and prior to December 1, 1937, will receive 21
per cent of their monthly basic salary. Employees who entered the service of the company prior to December 1, 1936, will receive 30
per cent of their monthly basic salary.

This dividend does not apply to executives, junior executives, managers and assistant managers, who participate in the company's bonus plan which is paid at the end of each year. Payment of dividends will be made on Dec. 24, 1938.

OUR READERS

REGARDING WATER WORKS
Editor, The News:

Since when did the engineering department of the city supersede that of the public service? In the controversy that has been taking place in the Salem News by Our Readers, it would seem that the wrong man has been censured.

The engineering department is a part of the service department of which the service director is the head. All employees in this department, including the engineer, are under his control. None may do anything out of the ordinary in a public way without first consulting the service director and receiving his sanction.

Should any of the employees try to consummate a matter by going over his head to city council, he would do so at risk of being discharged. Therefore don't blame the engineer if he is putting something over the service director: blame the director for allowing it.

The Winona schools gave their Christmas program Friday evening at the brick school house.

The following program was presented:

The Christmas Carols, "Silent Night," "Joy to the World," recitation, "Welcome" by Leo Cooper; recitation, "A Big Wish," by Jonny Miller; recitation, "The American Stocking" by Albert Holloway; play, "Mother Goose Visits Santa Claus," by the primary school; recitation, "The Birth of Christ," by Marjorie Miller; recitation, "Not Lettin' On," by Tommy Thel; recitation, "Christmas Shopping," by Carina Arbanitis; play, "Santa Claus in School," by the upper grades.

Song by Junior, Lowell and Galen Brandt; recitation, by James Taylor; recitation, by Willard Stamp; play, "Enchanted Boxes," by the upper grades; recitation, "Wise Santa Claus," by Helen Arbanitis; recitation, "I Wonder," by Leroy Rogers; recitation, "Good Night," by Barbara Stanley.

The program closed with a song by the audience. Refreshments were served.

Ladies Aid Meets

The Winona Ladies aid met Thursday at the home of Mrs. L. A. Weaver with 26 members present. A covered dinner was served at noon, and the tables were decorated in keeping with the Christmas season.

Miss Messer of near Newgarden, who is home on furlough from missionary work near Bombay, India, was the guest speaker. Miss Messer, a graduate nurse, told of many interesting experiences as head of a 40-bed mission hospital under the care of the United Brethren church. The group presented her with a gift and also a purse. A Christmas exchange was enjoyed by the members at this meeting. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. W. D. Satterthwaite.

The Winona Co-operative group met Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. W. D. Satterthwaite. Mrs. J. C. Pottorff conducted the discussion period on the topic, "Present Economic Conditions." The

QUAKER QUINT TOPS RAVENNA IN HOME DEBUT

Salem High Cagers Spank Ravens, 24-20, to Chalk Up Second Victory Of Season

Quakers' Defense Improves, But Offense Still Lacks Polish; Dunlap Hoops Five Field Goals To Pace Salem In Scoring

A scrappy but yet unpolished Salem High school basketball team made its debut on local hardwood last night, ringing up a 24 to 20 victory over Ravenna High's Ravens to please more than 1,000 home-town fans who turned out to examine the Quaker cagers in their second game of the 1938-39 season.

Coach Herb Brown's proteges displayed plenty of fight in posting their second consecutive victory, but again failed to show the smoothness and scoring power they will need to carry them safely through their 16-game campaign.

The Quakers defense was somewhat better than it was against Lisbon last week, but the offense still lacks the smooth ball-handling and clever pass work usually associated with Brown-coached teams.

The victory was the second in as many games for the Salem lads, who posted their first win of the season by nailing out Lisbon, 28 to 24, in their opening game of the season at Lisbon last Thursday night.

It was the third straight defeat for the Ravens and marked the third time they have lost a game this season by a close score. The Portage county quintet dropped two games last weekend, each by the margin of two points.

Again last night, the Ravens came near losing a game by two points. They trailed the Quakers by this margin when only one minute of playing time remained. Conversion of free throws by Jim Dickey and Bill Schaeffer in the final minute put the game on ice for the Quakers.

The Quakers held the lead from mid-way in the first quarter throughout the remainder of the game and outscored Ravenna in all but the last quarter.

Salem chalked up six points to Ravenna's five in the first quarter, eight points to Ravenna's five in the second period and seven points to Ravenna's five in the third stanza. The Ravens led the scoring in the final frame, tallying five points to the Quakers' three.

Rough action featured the first quarter in which the Quakers moved into the lead mid-way in the period and continued out in front to hold a 6 to 5 edge at close of the frame.

Field goals by Galen Duncan, Burton Sutter and Amos Dunlap accounted for Salem's scoring in the opening frame. Ted Skorman connected on a field goal and free throw and Karaffa made two foul shots to score for Ravenna in the first period.

Scoring see-sawed early in the second quarter before the Quakers began to click to move out in front by four points, 12 to 8. They maintained this advantage during the latter part of the second frame to hold a 14 to 10 lead at halftime.

Dunlap hooped two field goals to pace the Quakers' second quarter scoring, while Dickey added another field goal and Duncan and Sutter each made foul shots. A pair of fielders by Skorman and a free throw by Karaffa constituted Ravenna's second quarter point-making.

The Quakers continued to boost their lead after the half and by the close of the third quarter they had increased their advantage to six points, 21 to 15. They held a five-point lead throughout practically all of the third frame and jumped their edge to six points near the close of the period.

Dunlap was again the spark of the scoring attack, making two field goals. Sutter, Dickey and Schaeffer each made free throws to tally other Salem points in the third frame. Ravenna's third-period scoring consisted of field goals by Karaffa and Skorman and a foul shot by Karaffa.

The Ravens dominated play in the fourth quarter, cutting the Quakers lead from six points to two points in seven of the eight minutes of action. However, after slicing Salem's lead to 22 to 20, the Ravens were unable to keep up the pace and fell four points behind as the Quakers converted two free throws in the last minute of the period.

All of Salem's points in the final period were made on free throws. McLaughlin, Dickey and Schaeffer connecting from the foul line. Skorman hooped a field goal and a free throw for three of Ravenna's five points in the last frame, while Marsh accounted for the other two markers with a field goal.

Dunlap and Skorman shared scoring honors in the contest, each chalking up 10 points. Dunlap collected five of Salem's eight field goals, while Skorman made four field goals and two free throws.

Skorman provided the most trouble for the Quakers and it was his work under the basket which kept Ravenna from falling far behind the Quakers. He was ousted from the game late in the fourth quarter for committing too many fouls.

Dunlap played an outstanding game for the Quakers, not only on offense, but defense as well. He was not a starter, but was inserted into the lineup late in the first quarter and remained in the thick of the action throughout most of the remainder of the game. He scored his field goals from all angles of the court, even dragging down a rebound and tossing the ball through the hoop for one of his two-pointers.

SOUTHERN CAL BUILDS QUICK KICK DEFENSE

Trojans Hope To Offset Tipton's Punting By New Strategy

BY ROBERT MYERS
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 21.—The brilliant punting of Eric (The Red) Tipton of Duke will be met—and the Trojans hope offset—by the quick-kick strategy of Southern California when the two eleven clash in Pasadena's Rose Bowl.

Tipton's kicking fame is well known to the men of Troy, but maybe the staunch Dukes of North Carolina will find it matched by those bounding boots sent down the field by the Trojan quarterbacks when the downs and the formations apparently call for an orthodox running play off tackle.

Notre Dame learned of one of Coach Howard Jones' favorite maneuvers last Dec. 3. Time and again Mickey Anderson or Oliver Day set the Irish deep in their own backyard by these lightning-like thrusts, which ranged from 38 to nearly 60 yards.

Ohio State and some other Trojan foes found out about these quick kicks, but in the battle with Notre Dame they were the most outwitted.

Duke, with Tipton doing almost all the kicking, has an enviable season's average of 40.3 yards, but it doesn't begin to tell of the 60, 70 and more yards on individual punts by the Duke star, nor of how the powerful Tipton foot helped topple mighty Pitt.

In another answer to the Duke punting, however, Southern California has several better rates as one of the most spectacular broken field runners in the Pacific coast conference.

He took an Ohio State punt and ran it back 83 yards for a touchdown, and traveled 71 over a mushy, treacherous turf at Seattle to score Troy's lone touchdown against Washington.

Southern California's season's punting average is 36.3 yards. But Lansell and company have run back punts 650 yards while Duke's total is 390 yards.

BOWLING RESULTS

Kelly's Service Station regiers moved back into first place in the National league at the Masonic temple alleys last night, winning three games over Whitehead Products to go ahead of the Salem News team which was formerly tied for the lead.

The Newsies dropped to second position after losing two out of three games in a "hot" match with the Moose. Bloomberg's won three heats from Fitzpatrick & Strain and the Masons took three games from the Metzger Hotel in other matches.

Jess Hays of the News hung up a new league record during the second shift of National loop activity, bettering a mark set by Merle (Red) White during the first shift. Hays combined games of 224, 209 and 217 for a new high three-game total of 650 after White had put together games of 215, 189 and 217 for a 617 series earlier in the evening.

The City Duckpin league started its second round schedule at the Grate Recreation alleys last night with the Colonial Billiards and Sheen's Service Station teams each winning three games to move into a tie for the lead.

The E. W. Bliss Co. team, first round champion, was held to two wins by its rival, the Bliss Pattern Shop. The Salem Builders posted two wins over Sabin's Cigars in another match.

Henderson of the E. W. Bliss five turned in a splendid 540 series, including games of 180, 136 and 224.

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

NEW YORK, Dec. 21.—Maybe Dr. Townsend owns stock in the Brooklyn Dodgers. The Duffy ones signed Catcher Luke Sewell who has been in the big time since 1921. And after Al Simmons, the outfielder, a strapping of 35. There's no truth to a report Grover Cleveland Alexander will pitch the opener for the Superbas (Haw) however. Quite a few beefs over the fact Johnny Vander Meer didn't rate higher in the Ap poll for the No. 1 athlete of the year. "He pitched two no-hitters in a row, a feat 140 or so pitchers have been trying to do for 50 years and which won't be done again for another 50," writes Jerry Natale. Another reader nominated Ace Parker, All-America and All-Pro league football player, crack basketball player and a second baseman worthy of a big league trial as the top athlete of our time.

Sid Hulls of London has slapped a suit for £750 (about $3,750 to us colonials) on Tommy Farr for evading a fight in London. Anel Hoffman, Max Baer's manager, is doing some trans-continental dickering with Mike Jacobs now that the dancing Baer again is a key figure in Jacobs' maneuvers. Claims he can put Maxie on with Tony Galento out on the coast and turn 'em away. Tommy Loughran likes Lou Nova's left hand. "You don't see many like it, a real straight left, the kind that old timers had," said Tommy. A fellow reminded him the Louis left was no powder puff. "That's not a left, that's a battle axe," sighed Tommy, a great boxer in his own right.

Add victory lists: The Hull-Daisetta Bobcats of Angleton, Texas have won 35 straight football games since the 1935 season, averaged 20 points a game and held the opposition to three points. Strike me pink! At the Woking golf course in England there are no scorecards and only one competition a year (for the medal). The golf monthly of Edinburgh says the course is "steeped in an atmosphere of dignity." You can have the

STUDY DIVISION OF PROFITS OF STATE TOURNEY

Ohio High School Board May Break Up Large N. E. O. District

BY FRITZ HOWELL
COLUMBUS, Dec. 21.—A new plan of splitting up the approximately $150,000 Ohio High school basketball tournament melon so that competing teams receive a greater share of the receipts, is being studied by the state board of control and will be acted upon at the annual meeting Dec. 27. H. R. Townsend, commissioner of High school athletics, said today that the "bonus" system for the 32 quintets reaching the state finals probably would be continued, and that the state association would take a smaller "cut" from the receipts of the county, sectional and district events, leaving more to be divided among the schools.

The season's tournaments, in which Newark won the Class A championship and Canal Fulton the Class B brigade, drew 439,609 customers, who paid $142,812.37 for sitting in on the games.

Of that amount the state association received $20,882.50, an increase of $5,538.43 over 1937. Practically all, however, was turned back to the 32 state meet entrants as a bonus, or returned to the schools in district and sectional play, from which the state group had taken a heavy toll. This year, Townsend said, the cut will be smaller from the preliminary tournaments, since the association makes plenty from the state class.

Various questions faced three district boards on the tournament setup in their areas, and all must be answered before the Dec. 27 meeting, or shortly after.

The southwestern district board meets today in Dayton to decide whether that area's tournament shall be divided between Dayton and some other point, presumably Oxford or Cincinnati, with Dayton getting the finals, or whether entrants for the state meet shall be named from each of two divisions.

Cincinnati schools, seeking direct entrance to the state meet, want a qualifier of their own and they want it held in the Xavier university field house. Last year the Cincinnati schools were forced to travel to Oxford for the first half of the district meet, and to Dayton for the second half.

The northeastern district, with Youngstown schools pressing for a tournament of their own in place of traveling to Akron, also has its problems. The district board, however, will delay action until after the state meeting, leaving the decision up to the new members who are named at that time. Should Youngstown's plea be approved, Townsend said three meets would be held in the populous northeast sector, one at Akron, one at Youngstown and the other near Cleveland.

The southeast district board met several days ago, but declined to announce any action until the state meet. The big question there was whether Marietta, of the eastern district, should continue to play in the southeastern meet because of its proximity. Marietta, for the last several years, has stepped out of its own territory to win the southeastern championship and state tournament berth.

The central district board met here last night and decided to hold the Class A tournament at Delaware and the Class B meet at Westerville. H. W. Emswiler, board member, said no dates were selected.

EVENTS LISTED BY ACCOUNTANTS

Program of Meetings for Remainder of Year Is Announced

E. R. Watkins, vice president and cashier of the Mahoning National bank in Youngstown, will speak on the subject of "Bank Costs" at the meeting of the Youngstown chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants at 7:45 this evening at the Southern Hills Country club.

Watkins has been connected with the Mahoning National bank for 26 years and is well versed in cost analysis and accruals. An interesting program has been arranged for the annual Christmas party which will follow Watkins' address. P. N. Knauff of Girard is in charge of the meeting.

C. L. Flickinger of the Deming Co. is publicity director for the Youngstown district. J. F. Weber, Jr., of the Mullins Manufacturing Corp. is a member of the membership committee of the Youngstown chapter while Harold E. West of the Mullins company is captain of team No. 6 of the membership group.

The business year of the N. C. A. A. started in September and will close in June with the annual national convention in Atlantic City from June 26 through June 29.

The program for the Youngstown chapter for the remainder of the business year follows:

Jan. 18—Address by Jacob B. Taylor, chairman of the department of accounting of the College of Commerce and Administration of Ohio State university, on the subject, "Why All This Recent Discussion of Accounting Principles?"

Feb. 15—Address by R. B. Collins of the Youngstown Chamber of Commerce on the subject, "Local and State Taxes and Their Effect on Business."

March 15—Address by J. B. Devitt of the Hammill Paper Co. of Erie, Pa., on the subject, "Control of Property Claims."

April 5—Special meeting; plant visitation; place to be announced later.

April 17—Address by L. V. Bedell of the International Business Machines Corp. of Endicott, N. Y.

May 17—Forum meeting; two subjects to be announced.

May 27—Annual president's party; ladies as guests.

June 25-29—National convention at Atlantic City.

Theatre Attractions

Joe E. Brown and Leo Carrillo in a scene from "Flirting With Fate," showing at the State Thursday and Friday.

"Flirting With Fate," the new Joe E. Brown film, tomorrow begins a two-day showing at the State theater. Concluding tonight at the State is the comedy, "Service De Luxe," with Constance Bennett, Vincent Price, Helen Broderick and Mischa Auer.

Brown, veteran stage and screen comedian, plays the role of manager and star attraction of a vaudeville troupe touring South America. With him in the big cast is Leo Carrillo.

Beverly Roberts has lead opposite Brown, while Wynne Gibson is given another important featured role. Steffi Duna, who won fame through the short subject, "La Cucaracha," dances in the picture. Others in the cast include Charles Judels, Stanley Fields, Leonide Kinsky and Irene Franklin.

"Flirting with Fate" is a story of the adventures which befall Brown and his troupe when they find themselves stranded in the capital of a South American country. Brown, believing his insurance will save the troupe, attempts to end it all. Unsuccessful, he learns, just as he is about to be executed, that his troupe can have a year's tour of the biggest South American circuit. His efforts to escape death are both more lively and diverting than his attempts to bid the world good-bye.

Nancy Drew Series

Beginning a new series based upon the exploits of the heroine of the enormously popular Nancy Drew books by Carolyn Keene, "Nancy Drew — Detective" shows tonight at the Grand theater with Bonita Granville in the title role and Frankie Thomas as Ted Nickerson, her favorite boy friend.

The plot of the first picture in the new series, devised by Kenneth Gamet, is a typical mixture of the exciting melodrama and adolescent humor that have made the Nancy Drew books so successful.

Nancy's first exploit as a motion picture heroine is the rescue from the hands of kidnappers of a wealthy old spinster who has disappeared the day after she announced a gift of $250,000 to Nancy's school. In solving the mysterious disappearance, young Miss Drew has the courageous and clever assistance of Ted.

The youngsters make use of carrier pigeons, an airplane, an old X-ray machine which Ted cleverly converts into a wireless sending set, and Nancy herself even resorts to gunplay when she and Ted are in what looks like a mighty tough spot.

MERRY YULETIDE BANS ACCIDENTS

So Red Cross Warns Everyone To Check Up On Hazards

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 21.—The American Red Cross, again acting to prevent the tragedy of injuries and fatalities at Christmas time, checks Santa himself by instructing the merry old gentleman to fireproof his long white beard before getting near holiday candles.

Largely because of Christmas celebrations, more persons are injured by fire during December than any other month, the Red Cross warned. Even St. Nicholas may constitute a fire hazard, and should play safe by dipping his sometimes highly inflammable whiskers in a solution of four ounces of ammonia phosphate to one quart water.

Watch Your Candles!

In further voicing the opinion of the majority that safety and sentiment mix, the Red Cross turns the spotlight on other ancient Yule customs. "Burn a candle in the window for carolers, by all means, but be sure that a fire extinguisher and an unobstructed exit are handy!" John Melpolder, director of the Red Cross home accident prevention service, said.

The Red Cross suggests that all community celebration in Santa's honor be planned in advance so that the proper safety precautions may be observed, particularly in respect to the lighting and decoration of community trees.

Mr. Melpolder lists the following ways to observe the Christmas season safely:

"In order to prevent the Christmas tree from drying out, immerse the base in a pan of water. Cotton and cellophane are both highly inflammable; when using as tree decorations, take care.

Keep Eye On Insulation
"Insulation which has worn off Christmas tree lighting sets should be replaced since a short circuit may start a fire.

"Children receiving electric tops should be trained to pull out the plug before leaving the room.

"Dishes are acceptable gifts for Frankie include John Litel, James Stephen, Frank Orth, Renie Riano, Helena Phillips Evans, Charles Trowbridge and Dick Purcell.

Reunited After 15 Years

Stella McQuain and Louise Harris

For 15 years Louise Harris, 20, of Clarksburg, W. Va., has been hunting for her mother, divorced 15 years ago from Thomas E. Harris. A few weeks ago she heard her mother was living in Pittsburgh. Telephone calls and the help of the Bureau of Missing Persons brought about a reunion of the girl and her mother, which is pictured above in Pittsburgh.

the child who is learning to feed itself, but it is wise to select those made of unbreakable material.

"In the excitement of holiday time, take special care in the kitchen. Keep knives out of reach of children, make sure that hot liquids on the stove are set well back from the front edge, and in reaching for things on top shelves use a stepladder, not a chair or pile of boxes.

"If snow and ice are on the ground, sprinkle steps and sidewalk with salt or ashes to make walking safer.

"Public holiday gatherings should be held only in buildings which have been pronounced free of fire hazards. Exits should be kept clear and dangerous overcrowding should not be permitted.

"Keep floors free of small objects which may be swallowed by infants."

During the rush and gaiety of the Christmas season, with its homecomings, parties and celebrations, it is all too easy to forget how quickly an accident can turn a happy occasion into a bitter memory, the Red Cross official stated.

"Welcome Santa and insure further against fire by having chimneys and flues cleaned now."

Two Are Drowned

CINCINNATI, Dec. 21. — Wilbur Hayes, 12, and his brother Ezra, 10, were drowned in Lake Edward at nearby North Bend lake yesterday when thin ice broke and plunged them into the water.
